Friends & Neighbors —

Spring unfolds around us, awakening dormant plants and animals, renewing life through bud and birth! The Bible, too, is full of origin stories: the world's beginning, Christian movement's early formation, and many other starting points.

The most obvious place to find such a startup story is — surprise! — in the first book, Genesis, of the Hebrew Bible's Pentateuch, a collection of five books traditionally ascribed to Moses (scholars dispute Moses as author). Is Genesis the first book, because it is the oldest book in the Bible? No, not if we assign its age based on when it was written down, as a formal recording of earlier oral traditions. Instead, Genesis is given that placement, because it represents humanity's sacred narratives about our encounters with Godself, starting with the formation of the cosmos and all created beings, including people.

Also, to be clear, our church understands that Genesis' creation stories, compared with scientific and evolutionary accounts of the universe's beginnings or humanity's evolution, are different forms of writing that serve different purposes. Genesis' accounts and scientific theories are not incompatible or antithetical; they're totally different genres of thinking and writing.

Besides, even in Genesis, we find contradictions and variations. Did you know, that in the 1st and 2nd chapters of Genesis, we find TWO poetic stories about the creation of the earth? The first chapter of Genesis begins, "When God began to create the heavens and the earth, the earth was complete chaos, and darkness covered the face of the deep, while a wind from God swept over the face of the waters." In the second chapter, the additional version of the creation story starts, "In the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens..."

Both the Hebrew Scriptures and the New Testament include many other origin stories. Some songs and wisdom sayings re-tell God's creative works in the foundations of the world. Some passages describe the birth of Wisdom and goes on to describe her role as co-creator. "The LORD created me at the beginning of his work, the first of his acts of long ago. Ages ago I was set up, at the first, before the beginning of the earth." In the first few paragraphs of the Gospel of John, we hear another story about the creation of the world, including the presence of Jesus Christ as the Word, present at the world's beginning, along with Godself. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." The Bible is full of beginnings. Even the Book of Revelation includes Genesis-like stories of new creation.

Our personal origin stories, our earliest primary relationships, influence our understanding of Godself. This may involve parents, grandparents, other adult family figures, guardians, and/or other primary caregivers present in our lives: crucial relationships from our earliest days on earth. For many people, such connections may be loving and healthy, and for others such formative memories may be frightening or harmful. Such experience usually translate into how we first perceive Godself: as kind and caring or distant and demanding, for instance. Ideally, difficult early relationships have also been offset by early healing ones. Not always. One way or another, the people who cared for and shaped our early environment and sense of self, from infancy to early toddler years, shape our original understanding of Godself.

The good news is that our connection to God may deepen, grow, and mature over time, even if it begins with the seeds of those first relationships as part of our first, primal conception of Godself. Our own work on self-awareness and personal development can change how we connect to Godself. Take time to explore your connection to the adults in your earliest lived experience, your childhood memories; you will likely find a reflection of how you first viewed and related to Godself. Has it changed over time? Each of us may discover a different, complex image of God. Do you find specific traits that also remind you of significant relationships in your past? Is Godself calm and contemplative and/or busy and active, disciplinarian and/or nurturer, remote and/or highly-involved, punitive and/or compassionate, authoritarian and/or intimate, boundaried and/or unconditional, supportive and/or demanding?

Recently, reading theologian Jan Richardson, I found an autobiographical poem she'd written. She says, "...inspired by the baptizer [John] and by an Appalachian poet, I've been thinking about where I'm from, and what direction my roots are turning me toward." Her poem is based on the original teaching model found in the poem "Where I'm From" by George Ella Lyon (Richardson's Appalachian poet). Its cues help people write memoir-style poems. The resulting work, especially when rooted in vivid sensory images and family-based vernacular, shares glimpses into a person's family and childhood. Even into early, quotidian encounters with God. If you try this exercise, you'll find it deeply moving and challenging. To see examples and learn more about this form of autobiographical, poetic format, visit: <https://iamfromproject.com>. If you want to try this exercise, you may use this online guide to work on your own "Where I'm From" poem: <https://freeology.com/worksheet-creator/poetry/i-am-from-poem>. As you do, what do you discover about Godself in your family stories?

Over the next several weeks, leading up to the birthday of the church on Pentecost Sunday, May 28th, we'll explore different origin and creation stories in the Bible. We'll continue to tell stories about our spiritual, faith, and birth-adoptive-chosen families. For instance, we host guest speakers on Mother's and Father's Days in May and June, respectively, reflecting on their roles in personal and communal contexts.

Meanwhile, we'll provide invitations for you to explore your own beginnings and connections to Godself. This spring, let us enjoy. Learn. Reflect. Heal. Connect. Share. To start this discovery process, below are two poems. May you find the seeds of discovery and renewal in the sacred and personal stories you explore in the weeks ahead. As ever, know you are blessed and beloved. —

BLESSING in the CHAOS — *Jan Richardson

To all that is chaotic / in you,
let there come silence.

Let there be / a calming / of the clamoring,
a stilling / of the voices that / have laid their claim / on you,
that have made their / home in you,

that go with you / even to the / holy places
but will not / let you rest,
will not let you / hear your life / with wholeness /
or feel the grace / that fashioned you.

Let what distracts you / cease.
Let what divides you / cease.
Let there come an end / to what diminishes and demeans, and let depart /
all that keeps you / in its cage.

Let there be / an opening
into the quiet / that lies beneath / the chaos,
where you find / the peace
you did not think / possible
and see what shimmers / within the storm.

BLESSING for a NEW BEGINNING — *John O'Donohue

In out-of-the-way places of the heart,
Where your thoughts never think to wander,
This beginning has been quietly forming,
Waiting until you were ready to emerge.

For a long time it has watched your desire,
Feeling the emptiness growing inside you,
Noticing how you willed yourself on,
Still unable to leave what you had outgrown.

It watched you play with the seduction of safety
And the gray promises that sameness whispered,
Heard the waves of turmoil rise and relent,
Wondered would you always live like this.

Then the delight, when your courage kindled,
And out you stepped onto new ground,
Your eyes young again with energy and dream,
A path of plenitude opening before you.

Though your destination is not yet clear
You can trust the promise of this opening;
Unfurl yourself into the grace of beginning
That is at one with your life's desire.

Awaken your spirit to adventure;
Hold nothing back, learn to find ease in risk;
Soon you will be home in a new rhythm,
For your soul senses the world that awaits you.

Working on houses and talkin about Jesus

The journey of Mike and Joyce Scott with Samaritans Purse

Hello Everyone!!! Mike and I are in Wynne AR responding to a tornado. The Holy Spirit is going nuts here too, unifying the churches and relieving racial tensions that have been here for generations!!! We have a LOT of work to do here and we got here late so pray for Wynne too! Mike and I expect to be heading towards home come the end of the month.

Blessings to All of you!!! We are so so grateful for your prayers and support!

alzheimer's association®

There are many causes, near to our hearts which those in our community support. One of them is the fight against Alzheimers. Several of the walkers on our Eagle's Rest team have lost loved ones to this disease which is still working toward its first survivor. That's why we walk – to raise monies for research, for education, and for encouragement to those who are plagued with this disease and for their caregivers hoping for a better future.

Planning ahead: Past participants of this walk have selected Oct 14th for this year's event. Although we are using the Greater Portland Walk site to register and record donations, we will be walking locally at Great Glen and maybe indulging in lunch afterward at the Glen house, depending on the tourist traffic.

We welcome new participants to the event. Join our Eagle's Rest team, walk with us, or donate to one of the registered walkers. Once you register, others can contribute toward your walk goal. Show your support for finding the solution enabling the first survivor of this horrible disease.

To register please go to. Eagle's Rest Alzheimer's walk

Thanks, and spread the word. It will take more than one of us to stop this disease, but one is a start.

Did you know....

The Charitable IRA Rollover, also known as a Qualified Charitable Disbursement (QED) allows Americans age 70 ½ and older to make gifts to one or more nonprofit organizations (such as Jackson Community Church) without federal tax penalty, by simply requesting a transfer of IRA assets from the plan administrator directly to your charities.

Gifts can be made up to $100,000 annually and count towards the owner's Required Minimum Distribution (RMD) for individuals age 72 and older. QCDs from pre-tax IRAs are still a tax-savvy giving strategy in 2021 if you are between age 70 ½ and 72, even though RMDs are not required until age 72.

Consult your tax advisor for the best advice. This is a very painless and tax-advantaged way to support JCC and other favorite charities!

Have you considered naming Jackson Community Church in your estate plans?

Everyone has the capacity to leave a legacy – large or small – to the organizations that they care about most. There are many simple ways you can make a lasting gift to the church. JCC can be named as a beneficiary in your will, IRA, or charitable trust. Charitable Gift Annuities are available through the United Church of Christ that will provide you with income for life, a tax deduction, and a substantial gift to the church in the future.

Jackson Community Church is fortunate to have several trust funds that were given by generous church members in the past. We rely on the income from these funds to help balance our budget each year. But we could do much more if we had the resources.
